School Teachers at Dwight Schools 'Live Happily Ever After'

JANET AND JOHN Kresl were joined in holy matrimony in 1969, with John finishing a 43-year teaching career while Janet taught for 28 years in Dwight. Janet today is in the inset.

Editor's Note: Just a heads-up, guys. Valentine's Day is Sunday, Feb. 14.

There may be something funny in the water at the schools in Dwight, but probably only water served in the faculty lounges. Several couples found lifetime love while teaching at the school, and one couple's child even married a Dwight teacher to continue the tradition of teachers falling for each other.

Mariann and Tim Hall

Arriving at Dwight Township High School to teach home economics in 1959, Mariann had borrowed a car to drive to the village of Dwight to apply for a teaching position at a school "out in the middle of nowhere," said the Plano native.

She said she knew she was in the middle of nowhere when her car tires met brick roads.

"Tim arrived two years earlier," she explained.

Tim, who died in 2008, was a junior high social studies teacher. Tom, Tim's twin brother, was principal at the grade school.

"Tim was one of the first people I met," she explained.

At the time, Tim was already dating someone else, but asked her out.

She said she declined because he was dating someone else. But it was on again, off again.

"I checked with her and found out it was okay (to date Tim)," she explained.

They dated for 10 years.

In 1970, they chose to tie the knot.

When asked why they waited so long, she replied "I think we were both getting old," she joked.

They were married for 38 years before he passed away. The couple had two boys, Brett born in 1971 and Jon born in 1973.

you," Bill explained.

Note: Kresl had just married Herscher native Janet Kruse, another teacher couple that tied the knot in Dwight. More on them later.

So why did Mary decide Bill was the love of her life? Two reasons: chocolate and saving a damsel in distress.

"One cold winter my car wouldn't start," Mary explained. "He lived in the house behind me and he started my car."

Local Artists, Unique Gifts Featured at Franklin Corner, Dwight

by Myke Feinman
Managing Editor

Operating her own retail store has always been a goal for Mary Boma, Dwight.

"Basically I've always wanted to have a retail store," she said. "I worked in retail for many years and I missed it."

But the new Dwight store, Franklin Corner, situated at 162 E. Main Street on the corner of Main and Franklin streets, is more than just a retail store.

One of her goals for the store is to offer an outlet for local artists. She also wanted to create a downtown shopping experience to complement Dwight's wide variety of dining options.

"We carry local art, jewelry, accessories, boutique clothing for women, soap, note-cards, and gifts by local artists," Boma said.

Work by local artisans and their wares include:

• Tony DeMarse, a 1977 Dwight Township High School grad, wood crafts.

MARY BOMA, OWNER and operator of Franklin Corner on Main Street in Dwight, has secured unique gifts and art/jewelry/gift items from local artists to line her new store's shelves, as well as souvenirs from Dwight.

Blocked Exits Can Become Fire Traps

Keep Doors and Windows Clear to Ensure Home Fire Safety

With the recent house fire that claimed the life of a Dwight resident, the Dwight Fire Protection District feels it is necessary to provide some helpful tips to assist area residents in being prepared if and when a fire happens in the home.

Residents can set up a voluntary in-home fire safety inspection through the Fire Department by contacting Deputy Fire Chief Justin Dyer via e-mail at: jdyer@dwrightfire.org or by calling the fire station at 815-584-2373. The team will help identify fire and life safety hazards, as well as evaluate and help with escape planning.

Emergency crews responded to the house fire that claimed the life of a Dwight resident in the early morning hours of January 28, and encountered heavy fire and smoke conditions upon their arrival. Dwight Fire, EMS, and Police were the first emergency agencies on the scene and quickly worked together in an attempt to locate the victim and extinguish the blaze. Multiple area emergency agencies assisted with the incident from Livingston and Grundy Counties. Although a blocked exit was not a contributing factor with this incident, it still is a leading cause in fire fatalities in the United States.

Read the following material and review it with your loved ones, as this information could help save lives.

For many people, home is a sanctuary filled with items that make them feel comfortable and safe. But when furniture, boxes, and other items block or clutter doors and windows, they can become inadvertent fire hazards that threaten or altogether eliminate occupants' ability to escape a fire.

According to the nonprofit National Fire Protection Association's NFPA 101, Life Safety Code®, every sleeping room and living area in the home must have two clear ways out – usually a door and a window. To ensure that all ways out are easily reached, the following steps should be taken:

- Remove any interior key operated locks or padlocks on doors.

- Check to see that all windows open and close easily. Remove any nails or paint that jam them shut.

- If you have security bars on one or more windows, make sure they have quick release devices that everyone in your home knows how to use.

- If you use permanent hurricane shutters during storms, remember to put them back in the open position when there is no longer a storm threat. If you use plywood sheets, remove them when the inclement weather passes.

- Remove all smaller items in and around windows, including potted plants, which can slow down escape.

Clear any uncluttered ways out to serve as part of an effective home fire escape plan. After making sure all your ways out are not blocked and easy to use, create a plan for how everyone will get out in a fire. Choose a meeting place outside in front of your home where everyone can meet upon exiting, and make sure everyone knows the local emergency phone number to alert the local fire department. Check to see that working smoke alarms have been properly installed throughout your home, and that everyone knows the sound the alarm makes when there's a fire. Then practice your escape drill regularly, at least twice a year.

A few minor adjustments and relocated items, as needed, can make a life-saving difference for all members of the household. For additional information about exits in the home, or to learn more about home escape planning and practice, contact the Dwight Fire Department at 815-584-2373, e-mail Deputy Fire Chief Justin Dyer at jdyer@dwrightfire.org, or visit NFPA's official website, www.nfpa.org/homeescape.

Operation Snowball Slated April 2 at Odell

by Myke Feinman
Managing Editor

The 2016 Livingston County Operation Snowball will be held Saturday, April 2 at Odell Grade School.

The event, for students in grades sixth, seventh and eighth, will include teen staff members from Dwight Township High School, under the guidance of Dwight Police Detective Gary Beier.

Livingston County's Operation Snowball is one of 76 chapters across the United States and other countries.

The name originates from the idea that "If I have a positive impact on you, you can have a positive impact on someone else and the effect snowballs."

Tiffany Yoder, prevention specialist, Beier, and Jack Bristow, law enforcement instructor at Pontiac Township High are three of the leaders of the events.

Also available are numerous counselors who donate time.

The adult and teen directors work together to pick the themes, select the speakers for the event and recruit and train the staff.

Livingston County's Operation Snowball won "Outstanding Chapter of the Year" for 2015 based on attendance and successes of their events throughout the fiscal year.

This year's speakers will be Matt and Phil of M&P Presentations who bring "an insanely energetic and fun approach to the awkward years of junior high and high school," said Beier.

"Through their presentation, they run through their personal ups and downs in school and life, creating a comfortable and humorous atmosphere for students to take the time to reflect about their lives and strange moments that have occurred."

They present the idea for students not to take themselves so seriously all of the time and to learn to laugh and embrace life's awkward moments.

The finale of the presentation leaves students with a few ideas to think about including the idea that "we are never alone," "life is full of changes that we should embrace," and how the power of a positive mental attitude can "lead you to understand how ordinary is extraordinary," Beier said.

Gardner Creates Water Bill Late Payment Procedure

by Myke Feinman
Managing Editor

Only one three-month delinquent pay plan will be allowed per user per year.

After months of discussion, the board has decided rather than alter its ordinance on water bill collections, it has created a payment plan for delinquent accounts.

While their ordinance will remain as is with delinquent accounts required to pay and the process eventually getting to a sticker placed on the door prior to water shut off.

Commissioner Dick Hileman said the policy will be strict, allowing delinquent water bills to be split into three equal payments on top of the regular monthly bills.

If the water customer misses a payment on the delinquent bill, water will be cut off, Hileman said.

He asked the village for permission to lease the street.

Hileman said he wanted to purchase the street but Hileman would rather lease it in case the village needs it in the future.

"He wants to blacktop his lot and park more trucks," Hileman reported.

Mayor Mike Serena said

the village has never used the street as a thoroughfare, but it was deeded to the village as a street when apartments were built near the Campus road.

"To me, it's a non-issue because we have allowed him to park vehicles there."

Terry Jensen said this could cause problems with other residents who wish to lease alleys.

Hileman said this is a single situation and does not have impact on alleys.

The issue was tabled until the next meeting.

In other business, the board:

- approved a request by Cathy Pettavino to use the village parking lot on Depot Street for a car show in conjunction with the Route 66 Red Carpet Corridor event in early May. The village will barricade the area off, and provide trash cans.

- heard a report from Commissioner James Riley reporting 14 abandoned vehicle owners were notified to move them, with most complying.

- heard a request from Commissioner Terry Jensen to have the village engineers patch potholes on Main Street. Guy Christensen said the work will be performed.

School Teachers 'Live Happily Ever After'

In addition, Bill always kept See's candy in his desk.

"So he kind of warmed my heart," Mary said, only half-joking.

When asked why teachers married each other so much, Mary added, "It's a small pool here in Dwight."

She said teachers often socialized together, making it easier to find one's true love.

The couple married on a Saturday in January, went on a one-day honeymoon in Chicago and were back at work teaching by Monday.

"We were very happy to live in Dwight and raise our kids here."

The couple has three grown children, Jeff, age 36; Amy Golden, 33; and Carrie Rudolph, 31.

Janet and John Kresl

Janet taught third grade while John taught junior high science. She came to the grade school in 1965 and John was already there, starting in 1964.

"On our first date, he was so nervous," she said. "We went out for a movie and ice cream later and he realized he forgot to pay the bill."

John, who was also interested in sports "paid more attention to my brothers in Herscher than to me," said the Herscher native, the former Janet Kruse.

She said John was using her brothers to get his foot in the door with the family.

"It was his way of getting to know me."

It worked. The couple was married in 1969 after a nervous courtship on John's part.

John taught for 43 years while she finished a 28-year career. He died in 2009.

She said the reason so many teachers found love was "common interests."

The couple has three children, Juli Mahorney, born in 1975; Jane Kresl, born in 1976; and Tim born in 1977.

Jeff and Stephanie Flott

This couple is the next generation of teacher couples, with Jeff the son of Bill and Mary Flott.

Stephanie started at Dwight Grade School in 2001, first a teacher in eighth grade, sixth grade, and now librarian at DTHS, DGS.

Jeff was a substitute teacher at Dwight in 2003, then worked in the Life Skills class. He has since left Dwight schools but the couple remains in Dwight. He is a guidance counselor at Pontiac Township High School.

The couple was married in 2009.

"One of the first times Jeff subbed in the library, I came in with my class," Stephanie explained.

"After class, he immediately went to [grade school teacher] Kelly Bruce's room to find out more about me because he thought I was cute."

But Jeff was not the one to make the first move.

"After talking many days after school, I finally asked Jeff out on our first date," she said.

She confessed to The Paper that the reason she married Jeff is because she knew Jeff was someone she wanted to "spend the rest of my life with and watching him with the kids at school showed me what a great father he would be."

The couple now has two daughters, Clara, age 5, and Greta, 3.

According to Stephanie,

STEPHANIE AND JEFF FLOTT are part of the second generation of teacher couples at Dwight Schools. They married in 2009. Their children are Greta and Clara.

Submitted photo

She said she also believes Jeff married her because "it seemed like I could tolerate him."

"People coming to downtown Dwight to eat at our fine dining establishments can stop by before or after they enjoy their meal."

She added that shopping at Franklin Corner is "kind of like a taste of all things good. If you're looking for a piece of jewelry or bridal gift, check us out."

So far the response has been good to the store.

"I hope to create an inviting atmosphere and a unique store in Dwight. I invite everyone to stop by and take a look."

Mark and Mary Boma, who have also published The Paper of Dwight weekly since 1999, opened the store Jan. 6.

The couple knew Mary's many years of retail experience would pay off.

Dr. Kelley's Theory of Addiction

by the Dwight Historical Society

Note: This is part of a weekly series of articles about the Keeley Institute that will be appearing in The Paper until the July 14-17 Alcohol and Drug History Society conference event in Dwight.

At the turn of the 19th century, medicine had deduced that mental illness was inherited, and various gold compounds were believed to diminish the symptoms of epilepsy, psychosis and dementia.

Since inebriation manifests similarly, it was assumed that alcoholism was, also, inherited. However, the gold remedies of the time were ineffective.

If drunkenness (Gen. 9:20-25) was either redeemed through salvation in Christ, or treatment for the non-believer was commitment to mental institutions, both remedies resulted in severe withdrawal pains and no long-term sobriety.

Dr. Leslie E. Keeley, a

Union surgeon in the "Drunk War" had abundant case histories of soldiers addicted to alcohol and opiates.

The germ theory of disease was gaining medical acceptance, and Keeley opined that alcohol, opiates and tobacco contained toxic germs that poisoned brain and nerve cells causing overstimulation and then paralysis leading to death.

As with germs, these poisons did little harm if received in moderation, however, repeated large quantities altered the cells to accept the stimulation. This change, or disease, caused the cells to demand or crave the addictive substance to maintain the altered state. Abrupt denial of the substance resulted in the cells rapidly, but painfully, readapting to a healthy condition.

Keeley sought both an antidote and a means to slowly rehabilitate the damaged cells. He focused his experiments on modifying the earlier gold remedies resulting in a powder of gold mineral salt dissolved in water and taken orally.

During the 1886 hiatus, Dr. Keeley "found the correct homeopathic formula that would leave merely the vibrational frequency of the gold mineral."

After resuming treatment in 1887, the "gold cure" was then administered by hypodermic injection in an arm and supplemented by tonics to diminish withdrawal pains and provide nutrition.

The above is a simple overview of Dr. Keeley's theory on which he lectured in churches and Temperance rallies throughout the nation and abroad professing his disease theory and that his cure "has become the great ethical agent which, acting promptly upon the nerve centers, gives to the worn out and diseased system renewed health, activity and life."

No patent was sought for the formulas as the Keeley Company claimed they were proprietary secrets, which remain today.

Dr. Keeley did, however, on March 15, 1881, market a pirated cure.

The Keeley formulas for each addiction were sent to the franchisees.

Until Keeley suspended treatment in 1885, the oral cure was sold to individuals by mail order over four weeks in numbered, paired, uniquely-shaped and ornately-labeled bottles with instructions to break the empty bottles after use.

Think About Sending Financial Valentines to Loved Ones

Americans spent nearly $19 billion in Valentine's Day gifts last year, according to the National Retail Federation. Much of this money went for gifts with short shelf lives, such as candy, flowers and restaurant meals (and about $700 million was spent on gifts for pets). There's certainly nothing wrong with giving chocolates or roses. But this year, think about going beyond the classic gifts. Instead, use Valentine's Day as an opportunity to determine how you can make gifts with long-lasting impact to your circle of loved ones.

Here are some suggestions:

For your spouse or significant other ... As long as your spouse or significant other has earned income, he or she may be able to contribute to a traditional or Roth IRA. So, consider giving a check to be used for that purpose. A traditional IRA can grow tax deferred, while contributions are usually tax-deductible. (Taxes are due upon withdrawal, and withdrawals prior to 59½ may be subject to a 10% IRS penalty.) While Roth IRA contributions are not deductible, any earnings growth can be distributed tax free, provided the account owner doesn't take withdrawals until age 59½ and has had the account at least five years. For 2015 and 2016, the IRA contribution limit is $5,500, or $6,500 for those 50 or older.

For your children ... You don't have to be rich to give your children a gift worth $1 million — you just have to help them through school. College graduates earn about $1 million more over their lifetimes than those without a degree, according to research from the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Still, college isn't cheap: The average annual cost — tuition, fees, room and board — for a private four-year college is more than $42,000, according to the College Board, while the comparable figure for a public four-year school is about $19,000. Of course, if financial aid is available, you could get some help. Nonetheless, you may want to start putting away money for college. One popular college savings vehicle is a 529 plan. Your 529 plan contributions may be deductible from your state taxes, and any earnings growth can be withdrawn tax-free, provided it is used for qualified higher education expenses. (However, if you take withdrawals from your 529 plan, and you don't use the money for these higher education expenses, you may be subject to both income tax and a 10% penalty on the earnings.)

For your parents ... If you have elderly parents, you may want to find out if they've got their retirement and estate plans in place. If they've already taken care of everything, you may not need to get involved — but if they've left some "loose ends," your help could be a valuable gift. So, ask them if they have drawn up the necessary legal documents. Do they each have a will? Have they created a durable power of attorney, which allows them to name someone to make financial and health care decisions on their behalf if they become incapacitated? If it appears they have much work to do in these areas, you may want to offer to arrange a consultation for them with a legal advisor and a financial professional.

None of these ideas are "traditional" Valentine's Day gifts — but all of them can prove of great value to your loved ones.

Illinois Gas at $1.58

The price of regular unleaded gasoline in Illinois is well below the national average this week at $1.58 gallon as of Feb. 8. The U.S. average is $1.733.

The Paper's circulation area gas prices are all below $1.50 except Saunemin.

GasBuddy said the continued decline in gasoline comes as crude oil prices struggle and concerns of economic slowdown hit.

"Weakness in China is sapping demand from the world's second largest oil consumer precisely at the same time Iran is ramping up oil exports," said Patrick DeHann, GasBuddy.

The Paper publishes last week's and this week's lowest averages as of Mondays each week for the towns listed below.

Average U.S. gallon regular price made up of 17% state & local taxes; 19% distribution; 24% marketing; and 40% refining.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thanks to the Ambulance, Medical Support

Does our wonderful EMT and ambulance service of Dwight know how much they are appreciated by the people of this town?

On Dec. 6, I could not have asked for any better emotional and physical support than what was given me by Sandy Kokaly and her recent partner. Sandy followed me into the ER and talked me through what was happening and stayed with me until I was finally released from Morris Hospital.

This little town of Dwight is so fortunate to have such people of character, empathy, kindness, experts at what they do for people in a crisis situation.

Thanks so much, Sandy, for singing Christmas carols to me in the ambulance on our trip to Morris!

Re-Elect Seth Uphoff for Livingston Co. State's Atty.

Not only did I know Seth Uphoff growing up together in Flanagan, but I've gotten to know him again as our State's Attorney. Seth and his family were always an active part of the community and he has continued that in office. We see him at events in Dwight all the time, not just during election years. As a mother of three, with one who will be a teenager before I know it, I've greatly appreciated Seth being involved at our schools. He's been part of our mock-DUI event, he spoke at our grade school, and I know he's given talks at Flanagan, Woodland, and Prairie Central. Now he's partnered with our police in a terrific anti-drug initiative. Anyone who really knows Seth knows that he cares about our community and that he's a fighter who will stand up for us. I hope you'll join me and vote for Seth!

Minutes with BomaBORING GAME

If you're following over from my other columns you'll know I made some predictions, so far I'm 0/2 on those, one being Groundhog's Day and the other being the Super Bowl in which I predicted the Panthers to win, and they didn't. They didn't win, and they lost in the most boring fashion. Maybe the people who really love old school football enjoyed this game, but to the average fan, it was not a good showing for the NFL. The game was a defensive struggle from the opening kickoff. There was only one offensive touchdown from both teams. The winning quarterback didn't throw for a touchdown, and he passed for less than 150 yards. In the regular season he threw for less than 10 touchdowns. Even though it's Peyton Manning, at this point in his career I think you could argue that he's the worst quarterback ever to win a Superbowl, which is crazy. The MVP of the Superbowl came from the defense, it wasn't even an offensive player. The halftime show was arguably more exciting than the game, but just barely because it was Coldplay, and they don't exactly have music that you would play while you work out at the gym. Coming off of last year's game which had one of the most dramatic finishes in Superbowl history, this game really stunk. I think it will go down as one of the most boring Superbowls of all time. There were almost no big plays, just a lot of sacks, fumbles, and punts. The underdog won, that made it somewhat exciting if you like rooting for the team that isn't favored in the game. The unofficial holiday didn't quite live up to the expectations this year. It's easy to see why the NFL keeps changing the rules to let the offense score more, because it's exciting.

GSW PANTHERS BASKETBALL

Friday, January 29

GSW vs. St. Anne

Varsity -

The GSW Panthers were able to stave off the St. Anne Cardinals January 29, picking up a 50-46 win, improving to 9-0 in the RVC.

"I'm really proud of how our kids continue to persevere and work through some of the challenges of being a championship caliber team," stated Coach Gibson. "We know that we are now the "hunted" and that we will get the best of each opponent. St. Anne did that in this game and made us really earn this win."

Scott Horrie led GSW with 16 points, hitting three three-pointers and going 3-5 from the charity stripe.

"Scott has been consistent for us all year long," Gibson continued, "and he has done whatever it took to help his team win. In this game, Scott really showed that he was going to step up and score for us – especially early on and we needed him to."

Alex Bunna followed with 13 points of his own, including two treys, nine rebounds, and a couple critical steals.

"Alex had a fantastic game as well," Gibson said. "He has really matured this year as a basketball player."

Walker Eutsey finished with ten points in the contest, with Austin Kavanaugh scoring eight (one three-pointer). Braden Marks added a three-pointer, also.

"We are in a great position to go undefeated in the conference," said Gibson. "The last GSW team to do that was the 2010-11 team that went 10-0. We are hoping to surpass that and finish 12-0. I'm proud of this team!"

Tuesday, February 2

GSW vs. Peotone

Varsity -

Gardner-South Wilmington hit a roadblock February 2, losing to a tough team from Peotone, 62-35.

"We ran into a very good Peotone team that had been struggling some but really played well on their home court," head coach Chris Gibson said. "They knocked down open shots and shot the ball very well. Defensively, they were the best team we've played by far, as they held us to a season low. When we did get looks, we were just not able to knock them down and that led to a rough second half."

The Panthers stuck around early on, going into the second quarter tied at 16. They trailed by just six heading into the third quarter, but that's when the Blue Devils turned it up a few notches.

Scott Horrie led GSW on offense, scoring ten points, including two three-pointers. Austin Kavanaugh, who was under the weather, managed to put up nine points, including a three. Alex Bunna also had nine, knocking down a triple as well, while Walker Eutsey scored four points. Braden Marks added a bucket, with Noah Brannock hitting a free throw.

"It was tough having the eight-game win streak come to an end," admitted Gibson, "but we are poised to start a new streak now with three big conference games on the horizon with a chance to go 12-0 in the RVC. That's our focus right now."

The Panthers are now 15-6 overall.

Friday, February 5

GSW vs. Donovan

Varsity -

The Panthers rolled to an 85-53 win over Donovan Friday night, upping their record to 16-6 overall and claiming the RVC Championship all for themselves – as they sit at a perfect 10-0 in the conference.

"I couldn't be more proud of our guys and this basketball program," said head coach Chris Gibson. "We have been so close in the last two years and it feels so good to be sitting on top of the conference. We are still undefeated at home and are hungry for a 12-0 finish in the conference – still a lot of work to do."

Leading the way for GSW was Alex Bunna who went off for 18 points, including three three-pointers.

"Alex had a monster game for us," Gibson added. "He shot the ball very well from the arc (75%) and overall (77%). I am so proud of his development as a basketball player. He has been tremendous for us."

Walker Eutsey had 17 points for the Panthers, with one three. Scott Horrie added 12 points, including a trey. Austin Kavanaugh and Noah Brannock each put in nine points, with one triple each. Junior Schultz scored seven in the game. Ben Bexson connected on two three-pointers, while Colin Cash hit a three as well. Mike Wise and Braden Marks had two points each.

GSW LADY PANTHERS BASKETBALL

Monday, February 1
GSW vs. IL Lutheran
Varsity -

It wasn't pretty – but the GSW Lady Panthers were able to defeat Illinois Lutheran 48-33 when they met up for their conference finale February 1.

"Not a great night for us," admitted Coach Leigh. "Didn't take care of the ball very well, but were able to apply enough pressure to keep the lead comfortable."

Jenni Price had a big night, scoring 14 points, including two threes, to go with her six steals. Marlana Ferrari added nine points, with Maranda Residori scoring eight. Sydney Perkins had seven points, while Olivia Asbridge and Celia Barna each put in four. Kaylee Steichen contributed a bucket.

GSW finishes the season 10-2 in conference play – good enough for second place.

Wednesday, February 3

GSW vs. Central

Varsity -

In their final regular season game, and Senior Night in Gardner, the Lady Panthers came from behind to beat Central, 34-25.

GSW started off down 6-0 in the first, then an up and down battle for both teams followed. But a big fourth quarter for the Lady Panthers put it away, as the girls end the season with a 17-8 record and a second place finish in the conference.

Jenni Price did a nice job of guarding Podowicz for Central tonight," stated Coach Leigh. "I think she frustrated her a little, even though Podowicz had 15 points. It always helps when you have a 14-2 fourth quarter to seal the win."

Price and Maranda Residori each ended up with eight points in the contest – Price connecting on two trifectas. Marlana Ferrari added seven points, while Celia Barna put in six. Kaylee Steichen had three points, with Emily Hopwood adding a basket.

GSW also shot 12-15 (80%) from the free throw line to help aid in their victory.

THE GSW Lady Panther basketball seniors were honored on senior night Feb. 3. Girls included (from left) Dana Wright, Haley Schuck, Maranda Residori, Emily Hopwood and Olivia Asbridge. The girls finished their regular season 17-8 and advance to the regionals tonight (Feb. 10), 7:30 p.m.

Last Year's Problems Should Not Impact 2016 Crop

by Myke Feinman
Managing Editor

A University of Illinois agronomist believes last year's issues of standing water on crops and light freezing this winter should not have an adverse impact on the 2016 crop.

"We've had above average rainfall, two inches since early November," said Emerson Nafziger of the U of I.

At this time of year, it is still too early to tell what the weather will do to the crop yields. In the meantime, farmers are preparing for planting and getting their equipment in order for the upcoming season.

And as always, Mother Nature is a big concern for the agricultural production sector.

"Moisture is fully recharged," he added. "the concern is always about wet springs."

There is a lack of snow cover as of last week, he said, with little freezing deep in the ground.

"That's not a big problem," Nafziger said. "We don't know of any negative consequences (with shallow frost.)"

He added in the Dwight area, there is some frozen ground.

For the last two years, Illinois crops have been good with 2014 a benchmark year for yields.

"The state average yield was 200 bushels an acre for corn in 2014," he said. "Last year it was 175 bushels an acre."

What hurt yields in 2015 was standing water.

Last year, the heavy rains caused standing water in much of the Dwight and surrounding area, causing corn plants to die.

If the crop stands in water long enough, the root system dies.

(continued from page 11) nitrogen on it and bring it back to life," Nafziger said of last year's flooded crops. Farmers knew the "plant probably won't thrive."

He added last year's corn crop was "done in by rainfall."

The good news is, last year's problems are in the past.

"I don't think there will be a lingering effect on 2016 crops," he continued. "It's still probably fairly early yet today to tell."

Assuming the weather cooperates this year, 2016 should be another high yield crop year, he predicted.

On the soybean side, yields were better last year.

For the past two years, 2014 and 2015, soybean yields have averaged 56 bushels per acre, a record yield, he said.

POTATOES WERE born high in the Andean mountains of Peru, and are derived from the nightshade family. Originally, the Aymara natives developed more than 200 varieties, which became a staple in the diets of the Aymara, Incan, Mochia and Chimu aboriginal peoples. It eventually spread to Europe and the United States.

Potatoes: From The Andes To The States

by Tresa Erickson

Centuries ago, Spanish explorers discovered sweet potatoes on their travels through the West Indies. They liked the sweet potatoes so much that they decided to bring them back to Spain. Years later when white potatoes, or "papas" as they were called, were introduced in Spain, many assumed the two types of potatoes were related, but they were wrong. Sweet potatoes belong to the morning glory family, and white potatoes to the nightshade family. If the white potato isn't related to the sweet potato, where does it come from and how did it get to the United States?

The Irish white potato that we eat today was born high in the Andes Mountains on the Titicaca Plateau, stretching across Peru and Bolivia. There, Aymara Indians developed more than 200 varieties of the potato. It became a staple in the Aymara diet as well as in the Incan, Mochia and Chimu diets.

In the 1500s, Spanish conquistadors discovered the potato in South America while they were searching for gold, and brought it back with them. It took some time, however, before the potato was appreciated in other parts of Europe. Because it was a member of the nightshade family, a group including some poisonous plants, many feared it. Others recognized the potato for its medicinal purposes, and believed it could cure a wide array of illnesses, including tuberculosis.

The potato slowly spread to the Low Countries and Switzerland, and in 1620, was introduced to Prussia, where it was recognized for its nutritional value. To combat the famine spreading across Prussia, Frederick the Great ordered his people to plant potato crops. Many Prussians, however, feared the potato and refused to grow it. Frederick the Great retaliated by threatening to cut off the nose and ears of anyone who disobeyed his orders. By 1756, the beginning of the Seven Years War, the potato had become a staple in the Prussian diet.

During the Seven Years War, a young French chemist, Antoine Augustin Parmentier, was imprisoned in Prussia. While there, he subsisted on potatoes. Claiming that the potato was the reason for his survival, Parmentier fought hard upon his release to popularize it in his country. He convinced King Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette to encourage farmers to grow the potato, and to ease the fears of his peers, he shared potato dishes with several highly respected government leaders, including Benjamin Franklin. His campaign worked, and by the late 1700s, the potato had become a staple in the French diet.

Europeans made several attempts to introduce the potato to the United States throughout the 1600s, but it didn't take hold until 1719, when Irish immigrants brought the potato to Londonberry, NH. The immigrants discovered the crop grew as well in the colonies as it did in Ireland. Their success with growing the potato prompted other colonists to try it, and before long, it became the second largest crop in the colonies.

From the Andes to the States, the potato has become a staple in the diet of many. In America alone, farmers earned $2.7 billion in 2000 for the production of potatoes. As the population around the world continues to increase, the demand for potatoes is sure to rise.

Farming By Satellite

by Tresa Erickson

It's Sunday afternoon, and you're getting ready for the game. You've got the remote, the chips and the soda. You flop into the recliner and switch on the TV. Miles away, a satellite dish receives a signal from a satellite in space and transforms it into the game you are about to watch. At a farm across town, a similar event is taking place. A combine antenna receives a signal from a satellite in space and transfers it to a computer, providing the farmer with information about his fields, including the exact location of the combine. The farmer is engaged in precision farming.

In precision farming, satellites collect data about a farm and transfer it back to the farmer on his computer. The farmer can then analyze the data himself or hire a company to do it for him. Some farmers have already benefited from the use of this technology. Images from the satellites Landsat and SPOT have been used to identify areas that are under stress on a farm. However, the cost to obtain these images is high. To monitor by satellite the conditions of a typical 2,500 acre farm in the Midwest, a farmer would have to pay $3,500 every two weeks. Most farmers cannot afford this, so researchers are looking into ways to make the technology more affordable.

Because it is so costly, precision farming is more popular in the West where farms are larger. There, most farmers use Global Positioning Sensing (GPS), a series of military satellites that identify the location of farm equipment within a meter of the actual site in the field.

Pinpointing the location of a piece of equipment can help farmers determine the quality of the land in that location. In the spring, the farmer's fields are mapped out on a computer, and each field map is transformed into a field grid. At harvesttime, satellite signals determine the location of the combine on the field grid. Meanwhile, the combine's computer gathers yield data for each square in the grid. As the data is analyzed, the farmer may discover a difference in yields among the squares in the grid. While one square may have produced 175 bushels of beans per acre, another might have only produced 150 bushels per acre. The farmer can then test the soil in each of the squares to determine the reason for the different yields. The square that produced more, for example, may have more nutrients than the one that produced less.

The typical farmer has too many acres to test, but with precision farming, he can pinpoint areas that need testing and then adjust his practices to meet the needs of those areas. For example, after discovering that a particular square produced less because it lacked nutrients, he can take that knowledge and apply it to the crops in the fall. Armed with a computerized soil map of his field and satellite signals indicating where he is in the field, the farmer can add more fertilizer to the area of the field that needs it when he comes to it.

Farmers who use precision farming tend to have a better idea of what it takes to produce the greatest yields. They rarely purchase more supplies than necessary and use them only where needed, saving time and money. However, precision farming isn't as easy as it sounds. Farmers may know which squares to test, but determining why those squares are bearing smaller yields can be difficult. Factors, like nitrogen levels in the soil, fluctuate throughout the season, so it may take months before the cause is pinpointed. Even if the cause is determined, deciding how to correct the problem can be difficult.

Precision farming requires a lot of intensive labor, including field mapping, soil testing, data analysis and record keeping, another reason small farmers choose not to do it. Those who do use it, however, benefit and may benefit even more in the future with the addition of geographic information systems (GIS) to GPS. Several companies are now marketing GIS record keeping systems that allow farmers to record details, such as the type of equipment used and the weather at the time, and personal notes as well, such as an increase in weed growth. This information is combined with the GPS data and documented in the GIS system for the farmer's future use.

As the technology becomes more affordable, precision farming will become a way of life for many farmers in the future. Those who once farmed by the mile may soon be farming by the foot.

Logan Vieira Wins DAR American History Contest

The Governor Thomas Ford Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution has announced the winning essay in their annual American History essay contest. Logan Vieira, seventh grader at Tri-Point Junior High School, has won two levels of competition, the local and the District III division. His essay has now advanced to the state of Illinois competition.

The theme was "A Colonial Family's Reaction to the 1765 Stamp Act." Using historical facts, the British Parliament and King George, the Stamp Act required all colonists to pay a tax on every printed piece of paper they used.

Logan Vieira

The 250th anniversary of the "taxation without representation" Stamp Act was marked on March 22, 2015.

Essays were judged on historical accuracy, originality, spelling, and grammar. Logan's teachers who encouraged him to enter the contest are Keri Andrews (Language Arts) and Linda Avery (Social Studies). He is the son of the Rev. Mauricio and Ana Vieira of Cullom.

Logan's essay describes the hardships of an eleven year old boy during the colonial fight for freedom. Passed by

Many More Deaths Than Births in Livingston County

by Tom Tock

There were 116 more deaths than births in Livingston County in 2015 — 301 deaths and 185 births.

(Livingston County recorded 148 more deaths than births in 2014 — 325 deaths and 177 births.)

La Salle County, another county in which The Paper circulates, also recorded more deaths than births in 2015 — 1,134 deaths and 840 births.

Kankakee County recorded 1,512 births and 1,189 deaths.

Grundy County — 549 births, 360 deaths.

Ford County — 212 births, 185 deaths.

The 2013 statistics for all of Illinois showed the state recorded 156,931 births in that year, and 103,401 deaths.

Population-wise, Livingston County has had a difficult time retaining its residents. In 2000 the population was 39,651; 2010, 38,850; 2014, 37,903 (est).

Ford County has a similar difficulty. Its 2000 population was 14,209; 2010, 14,077; 2014, 13,688 (est).

La Salle, 2000, 111,516; 2010, 113,863; 2014, 111,245 (est).

Kankakee County grew its population from 103,879 in 2000 to 113,462 in 2010, then slipped to 111,375 (est) in 2014.

Grundy County has shown rather remarkable growth: from 37,678 residents in 2000 to 50,115 in 2010; 50,425 (est) in 2014.

News stories keep reporting on a population exodus from Illinois. However, Illinois grew from 12.84 million people in 2010 to 12.89 million in 2013, a gain of .05 million, or 50,000 residents.

Indiana, which is often credited with draining population from Illinois, grew from 6.491 million inhabitants in 2010 to 6.571 million in 2013, a gain of .08 million, or 80 thousand.

One thing appears certain — this section of mid-central Illinois has room for growth and development.

MVK vs. Elwood

8th Grade - Regionals

In the IESA 8-2A Regional semi-finals in Gardner February 1, MVK's eighth graders had their season come to a close, following a 35-28 loss to Elwood.

The Mavericks had no answer to Elwood's trio of guards, which combined for 26 points in the game.

"Their guards pretty much controlled the game," stated Coach Walker, "and we didn't do a very good job in containing their penetration to the lane which resulted in easy lay-ups that hurt us throughout the game."

MVK was led by Ben Krause's eight points, followed by Cody Carey's six. Tommy Cahill, Justin Bedeker, and Trevor Till each added four points.

The Mavs end the season with a 12-6 record.

Wednesday, February 3

MVK vs. Hazel Crest

Jesse White

7th Grade - Sectionals

The seventh grade

Mavericks of MVK were defeated by the Hazel Crest Jesse White Wildcats in IESA 2A sectional action, 44-21.

The Wildcats jumped out to an early 15-4 lead over the Mavs, using their pressure defense and height advantage to make it difficult for MVK to get into any sort of offensive rhythm throughout the game.

"Their athleticism gave us problems all game and their quickness pretty much dominated us right from the start," said Coach Walker.

Trey Hauch led with ten points for the Mavericks, while Chase Hauch chipped in with five. Ethan Brockman scored four points, with Andrew Litwiller adding two free throws.

"The boys got a taste of what it's like to play in a sectional game," Walker added. "This experience will definitely benefit this Mavericks' team as they move on to their eighth grade year."

MVK finishes the season at 15-7 overall.

would later share rides to college together.

Janice, along with the couple's two children, son Matt Lauritzen and daughter Sara Senger, will ride in the Harvest Days parade car honoring this man who simply enjoyed his friends, his family, his community and his life. The family expresses their gratitude to the community for this tribute.

OCTOBER

Del and Dacia Hancock believe a career spanning more than six decades in the retail jewelry business in Dwight is long enough.

"When we first started in the jewelry business, it was considered a 'no-no' for a jewelry store to offer discounts," Del explained. "Now, it's a necessity."

NOVEMBER

The Cookie Monster would be a friend to Sharon Soto.

Soto, of Dwight, the food services director for Dwight Township High School, Dwight Elementary School and Elwood schools, was recently published in the Barnes & Noble Cookie Bake Off book, on sale now at the bookstore across the country.

Her recipe is one of 4,000 entries nationwide.

Dax Patel is the new owner of County West Market, Herscher, having purchased the store Oct. 22 in downtown Herscher.

He and his wife Manta will be moving to Herscher with their two daughters, ages eight and 10, planning the move by the end of November.

Nothing could stop Jim and Cheryl Berta from keeping their business open and thriving for more than three decades – except the effects of aging.

After moving from Main Street to the Watters Subdivision on the west side of Dwight amid controversy in 1994, and leaving the True Value Franchise in 2000 due to True Value Cooperative executives mishandling finances, the couple had to start from scratch and rebuild its business once again.

And they did. But now, they are looking forward to retiring after a long career. Jim is 74 and Cheryl is 72.

The Essex Fire Protection District station is running out of room.

So a new building is being constructed just north of the existing station.

The existing station, located for more than 50 years on the corner of Main and Linden streets in downtown Essex, currently houses seven pieces of firefighting equipment like tankers and fire trucks, plus Emergency Medical Services equipment, and a boat for rescues on the district's many lakes, like Shannon Shores and Mazonia.

DECEMBER

Cat Clausen, Dwight artist, painted a pixelated version of Abraham Lincoln called LINCOLN: Pixel

Blue. The original portrait, purchased by the mother of a man who works in the White House, now hangs in his office along with another Clausen print.

Riverside Healthcare, Kankakee, opened its new Immediate Care facility in Dwight, Tuesday, Dec. 1.

"We're excited for this to be a part of the Dwight community," Dwight Mayor Jared Anderson told The Paper at the official ribbon-cutting ceremony held Dec. 2.

The Dwight Township High School Board of Education has approved a 2015 levy rate increase. The tax increase was approved at the Board's December 16 session.

The 2015 levy rate increase of 2.49%, with an overall rate of $3.13, is up from $3.01 in 2014. This represents a $93,800 increase in the extension requested.

As Dr. Jancek presented the levy and extension proposal to the Board, he also informed the BOE that this would be the last year to levy for the existing building bond which is 16 cents of this year's rate and represents $200,021. This amount will be abated next year providing taxpayers a break for the 2016 tax year.

The Dwight Village Board of Trustees met in a special session December 21 taking actions necessary following the resignation of Dwight's Village Clerk and Comptroller, Patricia Drechsel. Drechsel is retiring after 25 years with the Village.

New Lincoln Book Series Debuts During Lincoln's Birthday Week

Looking for Lincoln Heritage Coalition, in partnership with Southern Illinois University Press, will celebrate the release of the first two in a series of Lincoln books showcasing the stories of Abraham Lincoln's life and legacy in Illinois, with book signings by author Bryon Andreasen in both Springfield and Quincy. The author will sign books and visit with readers Wednesday, February 10, at The History Museum of Quincy, 425 South 12th Street, from 1:00-3:00 p.m., and Thursday, February 11, at Prairie Archives in Springfield, 522 East Adams, from 11:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

In addition, Andreasen will participate in the George L. Painter Looking for Lincoln Lectures at the Lincoln Home National Historic Site in Springfield, 413 South 8th Street, on Lincoln's birthday, Friday, February 12, at 8:30 a.m. to discuss both books, followed by a book signing in the Lincoln Home Visitor Center, Eastern National Bookstore.

Andreasen's first book,

Lincoln's Springfield, showcases the Looking for Lincoln Story Trail featuring the many stories told through the "Here I Have Lived" exhibits scattered throughout historic downtown Springfield. The Springfield exhibits are included in the Story Trail which includes over 200 storyboards scattered throughout the 42-county Abraham Lincoln National Heritage Area. The book features 50 Lincoln stories, including the original stories told through the Story Trail exhibits, plus about a dozen new stories uncovered through years of painstaking research, as well as over 150 illustrations. The second book in the series, Lincoln in Mormon Country, explores more than 30 fascinating and surprising stories showing how the life of one of America's most beloved presidents intersected with the lives of the pioneer generation of Mormons, whose 19th century capital was located in Nauvoo, Illinois.

These books, and several others that will be published over the next couple of years, will allow readers, and visitors to the Abraham Lincoln National Heritage Area, to connect the Lincoln-related tales to the geographic locations where they actually took place. Readers, and visitors alike, will be able to use the books to tour Lincoln's 19th century world and its social and cultural landscape – while at the same time getting to know the very human Abraham Lincoln known by his many friends, family, and associates.

Resources; Jim Isermann, CBMP Cover Crop Specialist; and Doug Bentson, GRAINCO FS.

Dwight Public Forum On Rec Planning Set

by Myke Feinman
Managing Editor

A public forum on planning desired recreational projects will be held at 5:15 p.m., Feb. 18, at the Dwight Village Hall.

The meeting will be held by the Livingston County Multi-Use Network Master Plan committee and is considered a design workshop.

People are encouraged to bring in ideas about recreational facilities they wish to see in the Dwight area.

"What would you like to see in the way of recreation?" asked Dwight Village Administrator Kevin McNamara.

He said funding for such projects will be from the landfill, which has already provided funding for a new county jail and other county facilities in Pontiac.

"The meeting is to find out from those in attendance to fill in where we have been, where we are right now and where we would like to go in the future," McNamara added.

The Farnsworth Group, an engineering firm, and Livingston County will host the workshop.
