RODNEY SCHWARK stands in front of his display of John Deere farm toys.

Antique Tractor Show, Ham and Bean Dinner in Herscher a Success

More than 20 old time tractors showed up at the annual Antique Tractor Show and Ham and Bean dinner at the Herscher Legion Hall on Saturday. The event was sponsored by the Herscher Area Historical Society and the Central Illinois Green Club.

A large number of people enjoyed the dinner and the baked goods auction.

Rodney Schwark displayed part of his large collection of John Deere farm toys. Schwark has upwards of 700 pieces of Deere-related farm toys and memorabilia in his collection. Some toy tractors go back to the 1940s. A large number of items are on display at the Herscher Museum now through Labor Day.

Schwark, who celebrated his 73rd birthday Saturday, also owns ten antique tractors, the oldest being a 1930 GP model.

ANOTHER SUMMER at Robert W. Stevenson Memorial Pool in Dwight began to take shape as several fun loving kids braved the not-so-warm weather on Monday June 6.

The pool is host to the Dolphin Swim Team, water aerobics, and swimming lessons. It is available for private rental Tuesday and Sunday evenings or Saturday mornings.

Public swimming hours are 1 to 5:30 p.m. daily and 6:30 to 9 p.m. every day except Tuesday and Sunday.

JOHN AND NANCY EVANS of Bonfield sit on their tractor.

A CARAVAN OF TRACTORS turns down Main Street toward the Legion Hall, with the Herscher Grain silos in the background.

Proposed Harvest Days Parade Map

A NEW ROUTE IS PLANNED FOR THE 2016 HARVEST DAYS PARADE due to planned construction this fall on Dwight's downtown railroad crossings and streets. The 2016 parade will line up behind the former Coils building on W. Waupansie St. From this location, parade entries will exit from the staging area and head east on Waupansie St. to Prairie Ave. where the parade will turn right and head south to Mazon Ave. As in the past, the judging area will be set up on the corner of Prairie Ave. and Mazon Ave. From Prairie Ave., the parade will turn right onto Mazon Ave. and continue west to Waupansie St., turning right, and ending back at the grass lot behind Coils. The total parade route is 1.2 miles and the new shorter route, along with nice wide streets with no railroad tracks to cross, is expected to keep the parade entries closer together. This year's parade is scheduled to step off at 12:45 p.m. Sunday, September 18, and will again be led by the Guardian Angel Basset Rescue Waddle.

Storm Education and Preparedness Event in Coal City June 15, 16

A Storm Education Night will be hosted Wednesday, June 15, and Thursday, June 16, at New Hope Presbyterian Church, located at 80 N. Garfield St. in Coal City, from 6:00-7:00 p.m. each night.

Guest speaker Art Donnelley will explain cloud formations and safety precautions. This is presented in a way to benefit all ages.

Don't Keep Family in the Dark
About Your Plans

You might work diligently at building a financial roadmap for your retirement years and a comprehensive estate plan. But you can't just create these strategies – you also have to communicate them. Specifically, you need to inform your spouse and your grown children what you have in mind for the future – because the more they know, the fewer the surprises that await them down the road.

Let's start with your spouse. Ideally, of course, you and your spouse should have already communicated about your respective ideas for retirement and have come to an agreement on the big issues, such as when you both plan to retire, where you'll live during retirement, and what you want to do as retirees (volunteer, travel, work part time and so on).

But what you both might have let slip through the cracks are the important specifics related to financing your retirement. You'll need to answer several questions, including these:
When will you each start taking Social Security?
Are there strategies for maximizing both of your Social Security payments?
When will you need to start tapping into your respective retirement accounts, such as your IRA and 401(k)? And, once you do start withdrawing from these accounts, how much should you take out each year?

You may want to work with a financial professional to address these issues, but however you proceed, you and your spouse need to be "on the same page" regarding the key financial components of your retirement.

Now, consider your grown children. You need to clearly communicate your estate plans to them, not only for the sake of openness and honesty, but also because they may well play active roles within those plans. So when talking to your children, make sure you cover these areas:
Durable power of attorney – You may well decide to give one of your grown children the durable power of attorney to pay bills and make financial choices on your behalf if you are unable to do so.
Estate executor – An executor is the person or entity you name in your will to carry out your wishes. An executor has a variety of responsibilities, so you'll want to choose someone who is honest and capable of dealing with legal and financial matters. Again, you could ask a grown child to serve as your executor, but, to avoid potential conflict of interests among your children, you might want to go outside the family. Talk with an attorney about how best to name your executor.

Status of will and living trust – Assuming you have already drawn up a will, share it with your grown children. The same is true with a living trust, a popular estate-planning tool that may allow your survivors to avoid going through the time-consuming, public and expensive process of probate. A will and a living trust will obviously contain a great deal of information your children should know about – so take the time to explain your thinking when you created these documents.

You want to enjoy a comfortable retirement, and you want to leave a meaningful legacy through your estate plans. To help accomplish both these goals, you need to include your loved ones in your arrangements – so open those lines of communication.

THIS GYM WAS MADE BY The Keeley Co. on the second floor of the Oughton carriage house when The Manse was remodeled in 1919. This is now a conference room in the Prairie Creek Library.

The Manse Becomes The Lodge

Note: The Paper continues its articles about the Keeley Institute culminating with the Dwight July 14-17 Alcohol and Drug History Society conference.

Upon graduation from the University of Illinois Medical School in 1906, Dr. James H. Oughton, Sr., returned home to join his father, John, at the Keeley Institute. Two Corbit sisters had earlier moved to Dwight specifically to work at The Keeley. On Jan. 11, 1908, Dr. Oughton married Barbara Corbit. They purchased Dr. Keeley's residence, as his widow had moved to Chicago. Yet another fire visited the Keeley as this home burned in 1917. Dr. Oughton purchased the home at 315 N. Prairie in 1919 for $10,000 and moved his family there that fall. This home was built in 1905 by Charles D. McWilliams.

Included in the sale of the Keeley buildings in 1923 to the V.A. was the vacant land of the former Keeley residence. The U.S. paid Dr. Oughton $6,000 for this parcel in the northeast corner of Prairie and Mazon Avenues being 145 feet along Mazon. The new Post Office was built on this site in 1937.

Despite the enactment of the 18th Amendment in 1920 to prohibit the national sale of liquor, the number of patients taking the Keeley cure in Dwight steadily increased. It grew from 186 total patients in 1920 to 407 in 1925. John Oughton died that year, and his son, James, was named president of the Leslie E. Keeley Co. Another son, John, was living in Chicago at his father's death, and he took no interest in The Keeley.

John's widow, Hannah Belle, was his second wife. The mother of the two boys was Anna Murray, who died while the boys were young. She and her uncle, Father James Halpin, share a tombstone in the Odell Catholic Cemetery. Father Halpin was one of the original five Keeley partners.

The Ladies' cottage and the available rooms in private homes could no longer meet the needs of the increasing numbers of patients. Belle no longer required the large mansion and built a new home west of The Manse in the southeast corner of Columbia and South Streets. She moved into this new home on Christmas Eve, 1928. The Keeley Co. remodeled The Manse to house 50 patients. Fifteen additional bedrooms were created, six with private baths, and women would be housed with the men. The kitchen, pantry and servants dining room were combined into a serving room and modern kitchen. The facility was renamed "The Lodge", and patients took occupancy on Christmas Eve, 1930. Mrs. J. C. Geis was made head housekeeper assisted by several maids. The Oughtons' mode of transportation in 1929 was motorized vehicles, so there was no longer a need for the carriage house. A stable was built south of Belle's new home to board the few remaining horses. The brick barn was converted into a patient clubhouse, with reception, game and treatment rooms. The second floor was made into a small gym with locker room. The Jags received their four daily shots and tonic in this clubhouse.

Memorial Day Services Held in Cullom

A Memorial Day Service was held at the Cullom Community Building May 30, with the American Legion Skinner Trost Post 122 family taking part in the service. The Junior Auxiliary girls led the Pledge to the Flag. Pastor Mauricio and Ana Vieira, St. John's Lutheran Church, delivered the message. They recently became American citizens in September 2015. The services continued at West Lawn, St. John's Catholic, and Sullivan Center cemeteries. Following the services, a pork chop potluck meal was held at the Post with 55 family members attending.

WWII Veteran, Don McCaughey, at left, was in attendance for the services, while Chaplains Keith Taylor and Vicki Allen placed a wreath at each monument.

Dwight VFW Auxiliary Awards Scholarships

by Marcia Drach

Five years ago, the Dwight VFW Auxiliary decided to fund a scholarship program for local Veterans, in order to help them attain their educational and career goals after having served their country.

When we started our scholarship program we were able to award two $500 scholarships each year. This year, we have raised enough to award four $500 scholarships. Scholarship winners can continue to apply for a VFW Auxiliary Scholarship every year until they meet their educational goal.

With our original auxiliary scholarship program, our goal was to provide financial assistance to local veterans, those young men and women who went directly to the service after high school, and decided to continue their education by using the GI Bill and, if selected, our Auxiliary Scholarship, to cover the costs of their educational programs.

This year we made a motion to expand the scholarship applicant eligibility to include local veterans and local high school or college students with a family member (parent, grandparent, aunt, uncle or sibling) that is/was a veteran of the armed forces.

Mary Wiemken

The 2016 Recipients are: Mary Wiemken - A 2016 DTHS Graduate - attending ISU majoring in nursing. Mary was applying under both of her grandfathers: Arthur Rohlf, her maternal grandfather, who was in the Army and served in World War II; Calvin Wiemken, her paternal grandfather, served in the Marines and also was in World War II. Both her grandfathers were at Pearl Harbor when it was bombed.

Kyle Walker of Saunemin accepts his Scholarship from Dwight VFW Auxiliary member Marcia Drach.

A 2016 PTHS Graduate - Kyle Walker from Saunemin. Kyle will be attending Morrison Institute of Technology majoring in Mechanical Engineering. Kyle applied under his grandfather, John D Eggenberger, who served in the Army, and his cousins, Andrew and Calvin Eggenberger who were in the U.S. Marines.

Alison Daniels

Our 3rd recipient was Alison Daniels. Alison is a 2016 Bloomington Normal Graduate, attending Heartland Community College in General Studies and continuing her major at a 4 year university. Alison applied for the scholarship under her grandfather, Erv Daniels of Dwight.

Vermillion Valley Show Chorus to Appear at Eagle Theater

The Vermillion Valley Show Chorus will appear at The Eagle Performing Arts and Conference Center in Pontiac Sunday, June 26, for a 2:00 p.m. Patriotic Show, "27 Voice Salute." Refreshments of cake and drinks will be served at 1:30 p.m. to be enjoyed while waiting for the show.

The Chorus was in Appleton, Wisconsin recently for a Regional Sweet Adeline Competition, where a second place medal was earned. The chorus is based in Pontiac, but members travel to rehearsal at Futures Unlimited from all over central Illinois and beyond for Thursday night rehearsals. Women who enjoy singing are always welcome to attend for an evening of music and education.

The Eagle show will feature the guest quartet, Flip Side, consisting of Debbie Lowman, Tenor; Kathy Filipiak, Lead; Ginger Stubbs, Baritone; and Charity Monroe, Bass. All four are members of VVSC. Well known for their parodies, the quartet won the coveted Audience Choice award at the Regional competition in May, performing a NASCAR set.

Also appearing on the show will be Drive Time, a quartet whose members hail from all parts of Illinois. Just six weeks after the group formed, they won the Illinois District Quartet Competition. The members of the group are no strangers to barbershop singing, and take over 100 years of combined quartet experience to the stage. As their name implies, they spend a lot of time on the road, as their homes span a great distance within the state.

The tenor, Tim Mahannah, lives in Arcola while the bass, Andy Isbell, drives from Chatham. Rich Hansen, the baritone, lives in Mt. Zion and Tim Pashon, the lead singer, hails from Sterling.

Tickets are available from any chorus member or contact Gina Maede at gina.maede@yahoo.com or 309-747-2679.

The Law Enforcement Torch Run has raised more than $39 million over 30 years while increasing awareness of Special Olympics Illinois athletes and their accomplishments.

The Summer Games are held predominately at Illinois State University in Normal. A variety of activities are provided for the participants in addition to the sports competitions. The Summer Games run June 10 – June 12, 2016 and involve more than 4,000 athletes who participate in six different sports.

Officers also attend the Summer Games and assist in presenting the athletes with their medals.

The Torch Run begins June 9 at 8 a.m. in Morris and proceeds down Route 47 to Dwight, arriving between 11 and 12 Noon at the Dwight Depot on West Main St.

The group will continue the run to Pontiac on Old Route 66.

I Need to Know What?

I just graduated college, as mentioned in previous columns.

That means I took and earned 120 college level credits. That was enough to earn me a bachelor's degree. I know a fair amount about a very small sector of all the information that's available to know.

My first two days of work were this past Wednesday and Thursday, and on Thursday we were given kind of a crash course in mortgage terminology and things to expect, and how to sell and all that fun stuff. What I took away from it was, holy cow, I don't know the first thing about mortgages. He might as well have been talking in Spanish because I was clueless on a lot of what he said . They always joke that people coming into this job sometimes don't even know that there's a T in mortgage. I did know that, but I didn't really know anything else. It was a very humbling experience.

I think sometimes we get caught in a bubble, at least I know I did, where you get pretty good at one, or a few things, and kind of forget about the rest of the world, and the rest of the knowledge that is available. Then I'm going to get to the point (hopefully, because you have to pass a test eventually to be able to do this for real) where I know a lot about this subject, and then you're hit with the MJ in '93 decision, do you stick with basketball, or do you make the jump to something else, and try to master that?

I hope that I'm as good as Michael Jordan in '93 at selling mortgages, but that remains to be seen. Vast information is humbling, but it keeps the opportunity to learn more constant.

Five geese have been spotted by the floral planters on Hack Street. 1) Helga Birch proudly stamps envelopes with a fiery disposition at the Cullom Post Office; 2) Poppy Elm is searching for bread crumbs at the Cullom Community Market; 3) Priscilla Oak looks to get pretty at Cut-N-Stuff; 4) Henry Ash is a responsible goose looking into an insurance plan at Barry Corban’s Insurance; 5) Fredrick Hickory is the royal gander watching his investments at the Vermilion Valley Bank. The geese, flower planters, and the Cullom Community Calendar have been provided by the B&B Beautification Group, Sandy Gunther, and Erran Melton. If you would like to donate a goose for this project, contact Sandy at 815-689-2466 to let her know you will be dropping off another goose.

MAKING THE TRANSITION

by Ronda Addy

Giving up independence is not something anyone wants to do. As we get older, we figure we've worked hard and we should be able to live where we want and come and go as we please. But unfortunately for some, that may not be possible. For whatever the reason, the senior in your life has to go into an assisted living facility. The transition will not be an easy one, but here are some tips designed to make it a little easier.

Now that the decision has been made to move your loved one to an assisted living facility, how do you choose one that is right for them?

Word of mouth is a good place to start. Ask friends and family if they have heard about any good facilities. Do a little research either through phone calls to facilities to request information or through the Internet. Getting general information will allow you to determine if you want to pursue a facility or not. Next, start making a list of facilities you want to visit. When you go for a visit, have a list of questions you want to ask. Scheduling your visit around mealtime will let you see how dining is handled.

As you take your tour, pay attention to how the staff interacts with the residents. Do the residents look happy and well cared for? Is the facility well lit, open and clean? Be sure to ask about the activities. Are there daily activities? Is the staff involved in the activities? Check out the living quarters. How much closet space is there? Can residents personalize their living quarters? Can a wheelchair or a walker fit in the bathroom? How are emergencies handled? Does the facility call the family? How long does it take an ambulance to get to and from the facility? Are you required to sign a contract, and if so, can the contract be cancelled? What is the down payment needed before moving in?

You've made the decision about which facility to move your loved one to. Now comes the really hard part, the move itself. Chances are your loved one will be moving from a house with many years' worth of possessions. Decisions will have to be made about what to keep and bring. Have your loved one choose the possessions that mean the most to them and bring those to their new home.

Prior to the actual moving day, have all the furniture and possessions in place at the new home. This will help avoid chaos and make the new resident the focus of the day.

It is best to arrive in the morning on moving day to signify a new day. Make sure the staff is on hand to greet the new arrival. Even though everyone will want to be there to help, the fewer family members around, the better. Family members that are present should plan on staying through lunch and helping the new resident make friends. Family members not involved in the move can stop by frequently to help with the transition.

Once move-in day is over, the transition phase will begin. There will be difficult times and family members should be prepared to deal with these. After all, moving is a big adjustment for anybody, but moving and giving up possessions and independence is huge.

Aging with Vitality, Grace and Confidence

Aging. It's one of the great ironies of life:

Now, where did I leave those car keys? You know... that time of your life that seemed so far away when viewed from a distance.

As the calendar pages keep turning, you may find yourself greeting this new phase of life with mixed feelings: a sense of accomplishment, sure, but perhaps also apprehension for the unknown and even surprise from unanticipated changes.

With age comes wisdom and experience, but it can also include new and unexpected signs of growing older that can impact your body and life. Fortunately, in many regards, age is but a state of mind. With these practical tips, you can glide into the future with vitality, grace and confidence.

Stay true to your style.

There is no written rule that once you achieve a certain age, your hair must be cropped close, your wardrobe frozen in time or your favorite vibrant lipstick shade cast aside. Your personal style is an important aspect of your identity, and simply tweaking or slightly evolving your look lets you remain true to your familiar self as you enter this new phase of life.

Resist the urge to rest

Filling your time with low-demand pursuits is a perfectly natural response to the liberation of an empty nest or the newfound freedom of retirement. You've earned a break, for sure. However, be wary of letting your brain languish to extremes. Find ways to stimulate your mind to help keep you sharp and ward off those senior moments.

Make your physical wellness a priority

Taking care of your body will help ensure you have the physical stamina to continue enjoying your favorite activities, and will give you the best shot at keeping your health condition optimal.

Embrace confidence boosters

Change is at the very heart of midlife, and most of us can come to acknowledge, even appreciate, how life has a way of evolving. But changes can sometimes cause confidence to lag.

The loss of a job, upheavals in a long-term relationship, financial hardships and empty nests are just a few of the big challenges we frequently confront.

Age Gauge Ever looked at your driver's license and thought, "Is that really my age? It's time to find out how old you really feel."

1. Are you confident enough to wear the clothes and styles you love?

a. Absolutely, I don't let anything stand in the way of fashion.

b. Sometimes, I've definitely outgrown some styles.

c. Not really ... I tend to go for safe, sensible outfits.

2. Long-distance adventures or local delights: What's your travel preference?

a. The further the better, the best adventures begin with a long-distance flight.

b. I love the idea of long-distance travel, but I'd have to be well prepared.

c. Close to home, I don't like veering too far.

3. What's your fitness regime like?

a. Intense, exercise is the highlight of my day.

b. Average, I do my best to keep fit but there are challenges.

c. Non-existent, I don't feel confident enough to work out.

Empower yourself to live the age you want to be.

Trouble hearing? Why you need to do more than just turn up the volume Approximately 20 percent of Americans live with hearing loss, according to the Hearing Loss Association of America. If you're among them, you may think all you need to do in order to hear better is to turn up the volume. But many factors make up hearing, including sound quality, clarity, the ability to identify where sounds are coming from and how your brain processes these sounds. To get the best hearing experience, you need to address all of them.

A recent survey conducted online by Harris Poll illustrates the challenges people with hearing loss experience listening to conversations and processing information. The poll of more than 2,000 adults found 67 percent struggle to hear in noisy places like a restaurant, and 73 percent have trouble hearing sounds coming from different directions. Eighty-five percent have to listen harder to understand what's being said around them, and more than half actually have to strain to understand, follow and participate in conversations.

Hearing aids can help many of the 48 million Americans who experience hearing loss, but it's important your hearing aids address more than just volume. Depending on the type of hearing loss, you may have trouble hearing clearly in a crowded room, identifying the direction a sound is coming from, or hearing high-pitched sounds like a doorbell or the voice of a grandchild. The ability to hear low-volume sounds is only one component of good hearing; quality, clarity and directionality are also important. Your hearing aid needs to address all of those factors, and not just increase the volume of noises around you.

Attorney Chris Mammel of Florida found distinguishing sounds coming from different directions to be one of the most significant challenges of his hearing loss.

"Courtrooms are naturally noisy places," Mammel says. "If I was sitting in the audience, waiting for my turn before a judge, I couldn't differentiate conversations or where sounds were coming from. It made it difficult to determine what kind of mood a judge was in before I had to stand in front of her."

Like many people with hearing loss, Mammel found the effort of listening to be tiring. While your ears handle the mechanics of hearing, it's your brain's job to interpret the sound messages the ears send it. People with hearing loss often have to put more effort into listening and interpreting what they hear.

A hearing aid with brain hearing technology allows users to hear well from all directions. Brain hearing technology makes listening easier on the brain. Super-fast processors within the device filter out distracting noises, allowing you to more easily follow conversations, even in loud environments like a busy restaurant. You enjoy a more balanced, natural sound experience.

A device improved Mammel's ability to discern directionality and follow conversations in the courtroom and the board room, shifting focus easily to the speakers he wanted to hear.

"Before, I would have to pick someone right next to me in the room and that would basically be the only person I could speak with," he says. "Now I can participate around the table in conversation. I can look down the line three or four people and still follow or actually participate in a conversation with them. It's really been a remarkable change."

Many people also want aids that can interact with other important devices in their lives, such as mobile phones or home sound systems.

As you grow older, your likelihood of experiencing hearing loss increases, and nearly half of all people older than 75 will have trouble hearing, the Hearing Loss Association reports. In fact, hearing loss is the third most-common physical condition, after arthritis and heart disease, and it can affect every aspect of your life, including your physical and mental health, relationships and self-esteem. Four facts about artery health Study reveals new risks for diabetes patients

Did you know that you could be slowly getting sicker with artery blockage, even if you are symptom free and not diagnosed with heart disease?

Your gender, age and whether you have diabetes all affect the prevalence of certain kinds of peripheral vascular disease, which is a condition that affects the blood vessels, according to a new study led by researchers at New York University Langone Medical Center. This study analyzed data from 3.6 million patients who were screened by Life Line Screening.

This insight could help doctors have a better understanding of who is at risk for which diseases.

sound to visualize the arteries.

Men and women: Abdominal aortic aneurysms

The aorta is a major blood supply line to your body, running from your heart to your abdomen. When an aneurysm occurs, an area in this vital artery become enlarged and could eventually grow and rupture. These ruptures are serious, as they are life threatening and difficult to operate on. Causes are not known, but researchers have found a correlation with tobacco use, a hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure. Most people are unaware of having this condition, but a major symptom is a feeling of pulsation from the navel. According to the NYU study, prevalence of abdominal aortic aneurysms was similar across all age groups. Annual screening can be done with a simple ultrasound.

Diabetes patients: Peripheral vascular disease

Patients with diabetes are often screened for heart disease, just because of the great risk factors present in these patients. But the NYU study results indicate that doctors might want to consider the onset of peripheral vascular disease in their diabetes patients as well. Patients with diabetes were at a very high risk of developing peripheral vascular disease in the lower extremities or the carotid artery - even if they were not diagnosed with heart disease, according to the study.

Future study is needed to see if screening could lead to better health for diabetes patients, says senior investigator Dr. Jeffrey S. Berger, an associate professor in the Leon H. Charney Division of Cardiology at NYU Langone.

"We know that if you have carotid artery stenosis, you're at an increased risk for stroke, and we know that if you have lower extremity arterial disease, you're at increased risk for significant impairment in your daily activities like walking, and even amputation," he says. "What these studies show is the power of large data sets to provide insight into the prevalence of and risk factors for cardiovascular disease."

The Noxious Canada Thistle Weed

A noxious weed is a plant that is injurious to agricultural or horticultural crops, natural habitats or ecosystems, or humans or livestock. Most noxious weeds have been introduced into an ecosystem through ignorance, mismanagement, or accident, while some are native. Noxious plants grow aggressively and multiply quickly if not controlled. They are a large problem in many parts of the world, greatly affecting areas of agriculture, forest management, nature reserves, parks and other open space. Noxious weeds are typically agricultural pests, though many also have impacts on natural areas.

Species of thistle plants are noxious (and obnoxious). One of the more common thistles in our region is Canada (not Canadian) thistle (Cirsium arvense). A native of Europe, Canada thistle is a perennial broadleaved weed with creeping roots that can extend up to 17 feet (5 m) horizontally and up to 20 feet (6 m) deep. Besides its deep and wide-growing ability, its leaves are prickly, making it unpalatable for browsing animals. In addition, a single flower will produce five to six hundred seeds from which new plants start. A single plant can produce up to five thousand long-lived (up to 20 years) airborne seeds.

Canada thistle is a cool season perennial that grows actively in spring and fall, and tolerates a wide range of soil conditions; it will readily compete with other crops, and also grow in non-cultivated areas. It's a particularly problematic weed in pastures and within crops such as peas and beans.

Management

Canada thistle's survival strength lies in two areas:

ability to produce over five thousand seeds in a single inflorescence, and in its ability to regenerate vegetative from roots every season. Management of this nuisance weed takes into consideration the two aspects.

For the backyard gardener, lifting the soil with a pitch fork allows the removal of the Canada thistle plant and its rhizomatous tap root system - as much of it as possible. In a small area and if the thistle infestation is severe, sorghum can be sown. The two plant types emerge and grow together, but sorghum grows faster and will outcompete the Canada thistle for sunlight, which becomes a limitation for vigorous growth of thistles; and before sorghum flowers, everything is mowed down and re-seeded with sorghum, and the cycle repeated. By using this strategy, first the thistle fails to flower and second, thistle nutrients are heavily depleted in its root system. This process can be repeated again in the second year, and will defeat the thistles.

Rototilling a thistle-infested area breaks the roots into small bits, each of which can grow into a new plant. Therefore, work first with the pitch fork to lift these weeds before rototilling.

For larger areas, using a herbicide like 2,4-D or glyphosate helps, but if applied in the spring, the herbicide has to be repeated regularly (check pesticide label) as new growth appears. In the fall, a single application of a systemic herbicide like glyphosate may offer enough control, but could be re-applied in spring if needed. Thistles can also be spot-treated to protect other sensitive plants in the vicinity. Grazing animals are also known to eat thistle flowers, and some small ruminants (goats and sheep) have been reported to forage on thistles, especially when these are younger.

Noxious Weed Control Law Canada thistle is listed in 43 states as a noxious weed, and these states (including Illinois) have laws that require the removal of all noxious plants before they go to flower. Failure to control it could attract a fine; however, because the law is poorly enforced, Canada thistle continues to grow happily in many areas which include pastures, meadows, gardens, and along roadsides.

As per Illinois Law 220, the following information is given: Section 220.10 Duty of Every Person

a) It shall be the duty of every person to control the spread of and to eradicate all noxious weeds on lands owned or controlled by those persons in the State of Illinois.

b) All noxious weeds shall be controlled or eradicated by methods approved and adopted pursuant to the Act and these rules.

University of Illinois Extension provides equal opportunities in programs and employment. If you need a reasonable accommodation to participate in a program, please contact the Unit Office at least two weeks prior to the event. University of Illinois Extension offers practical, research-based programs that help people improve their lives and address critical community issues involving youth, families, economics, health and natural resources.
